GET TO KNOW ...
AKI FOX

- JOB: GAMER
- FAVOURITE GADGET: GAME CONTROLLER
- LIKES: GETTING TO THE NEXT LEVEL IN GAMES
- DISLIKES: WHEN ANYONE DEFEATS HER TOP SCORES

There's nothing better than spending time with friends ... especially when they're all top gamers, too!

Aki plays video games at home, with her friends and even when she's doing her chores!

Aki takes part in gaming tournaments whenever she can. Her opponents dread facing her!

It's the E-GAMEZ championship! Look at the pictures below and find eight differences.

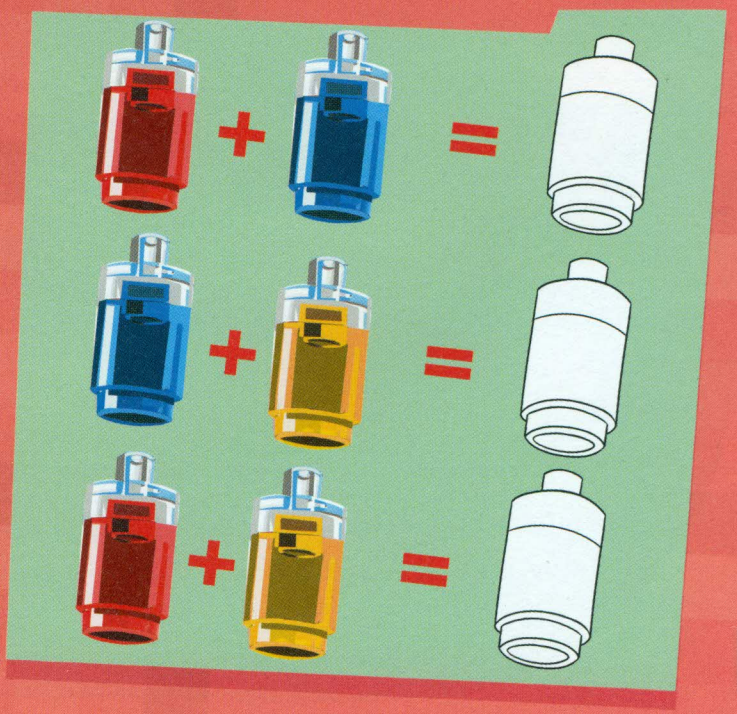

Gaming tournaments are so much fun!

Look for the repeating character in each neighbouring set. One has been found for you. The character you find in the final set is who Aki will play against next.

Aki needs a nice cold drink. She loves mixing different flavours. Colour in the empty bottles to show what colour each one will be once they've been mixed.

GAME DAY

Aki was super-excited! There was just one day to go until the release of an amazing new game, Space Mutants: The Awakening. It was all she could think about!

Aki excitedly told everyone about the game: neighbours, friends, the delivery guy and even a stray cat (who replied with a bored meow).

That night, Aki got ready. "Only 12 hours until the shop opens!" she sang. She planned to pitch a tent in front of the video-game shop and wake up at dawn to make sure she was the first in line to buy the game.

When she arrived at the shop she began pitching her tent, but it kept falling down. "This is much harder in real life than it is in my camping video game!" she said to herself.

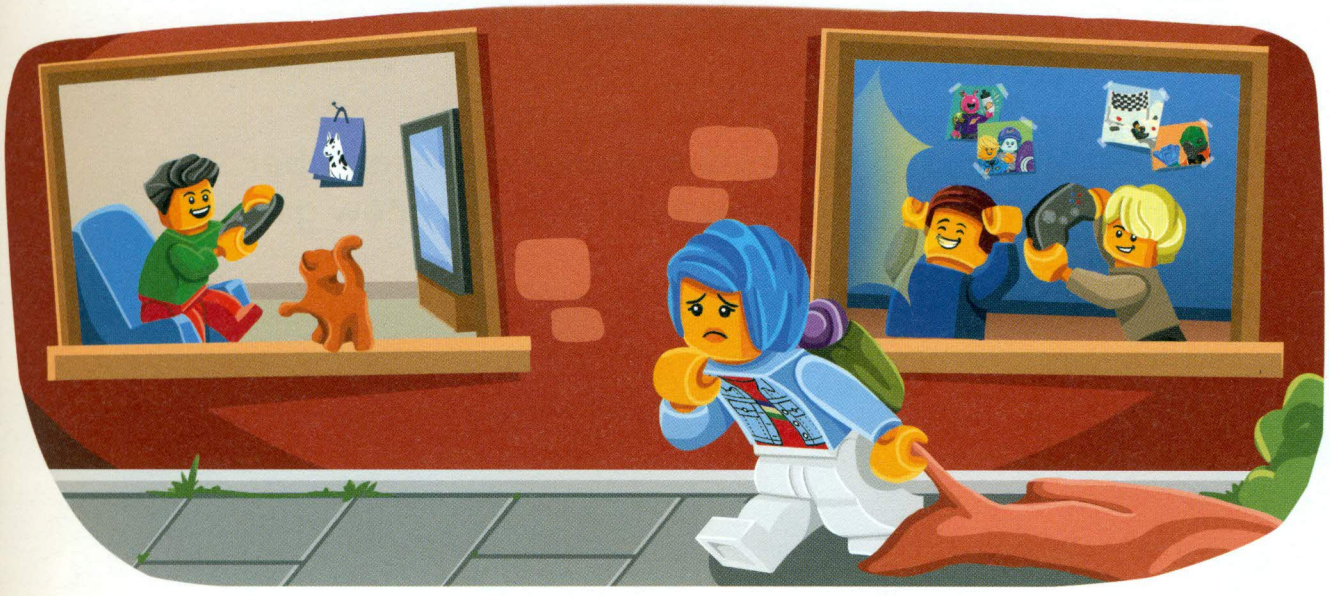

Finally, Aki got her tent to stay up. She was really tired, so she crawled in and fell right asleep.

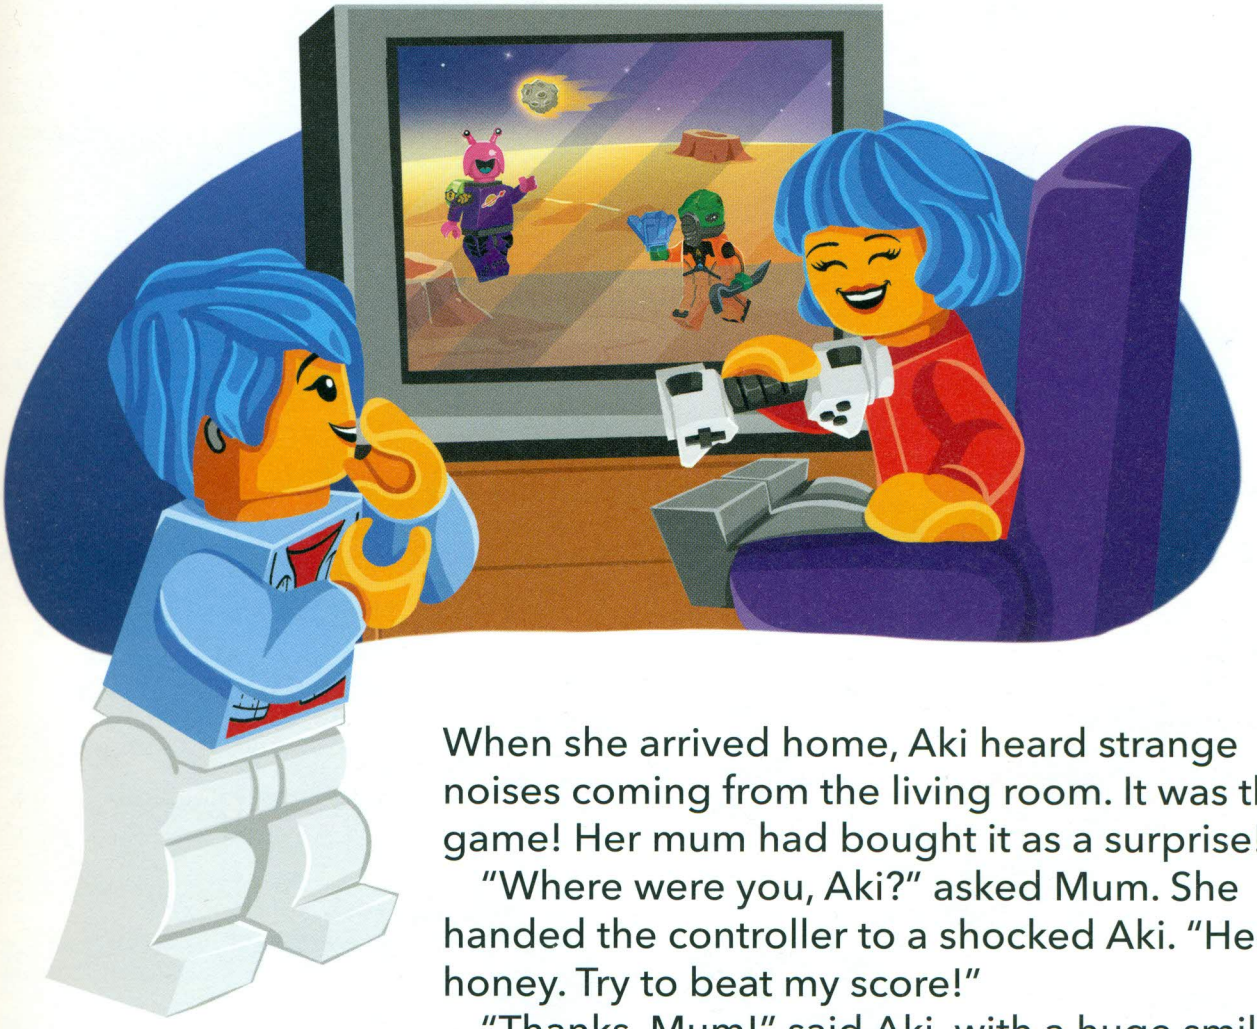

When Aki woke up, she freaked out. "Ahh! I overslept!" she moaned. The video-game shop had been open for two hours!

She rushed into the shop, but all the copies of the game had sold out. "Noooo!" she cried.

Aki had never been so upset. She took down her tent and walked home, dragging her things behind her. As she walked past her neighbours' homes, she saw their smiling faces as they all played the new game.

When she arrived home, Aki heard strange noises coming from the living room. It was the game! Her mum had bought it as a surprise!

"Where were you, Aki?" asked Mum. She handed the controller to a shocked Aki. "Here, honey. Try to beat my score!"

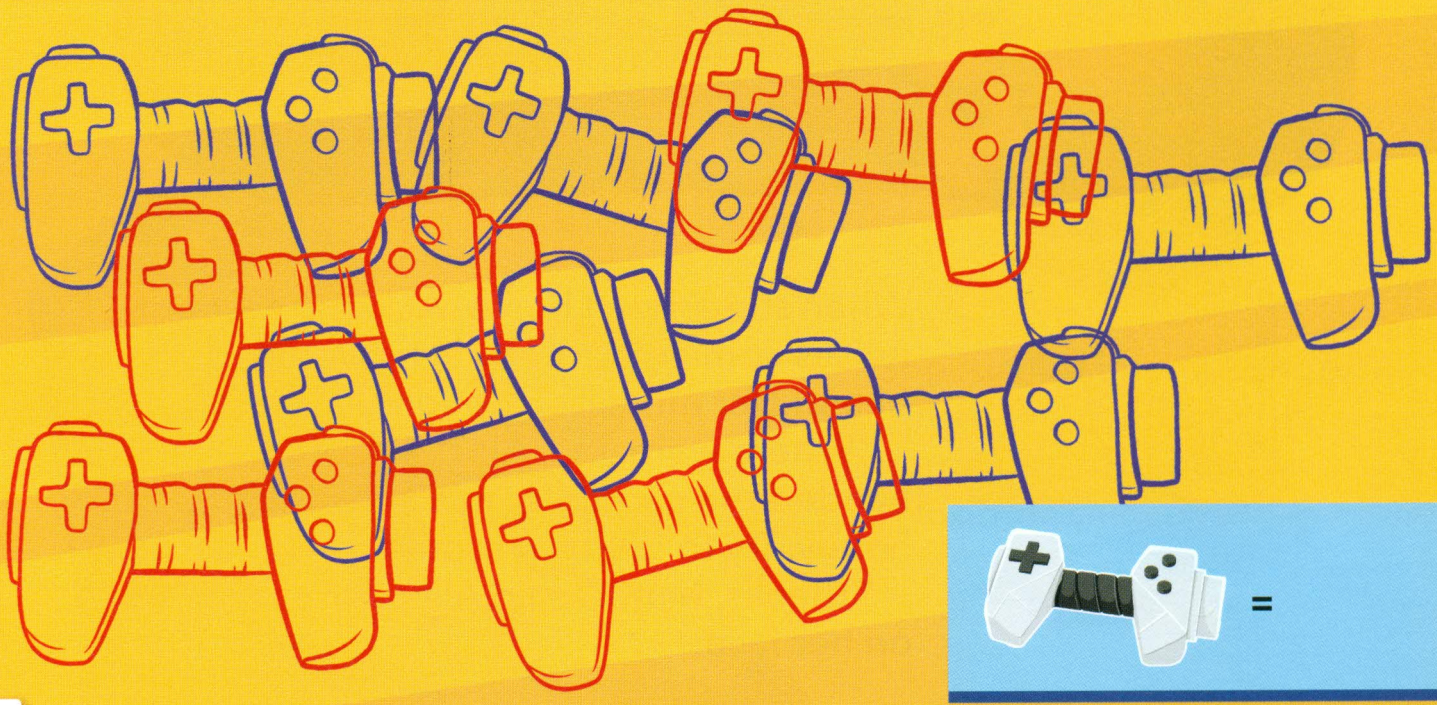

"Thanks, Mum!" said Aki, with a huge smile on her face.

Level up! Colour in all the squares containing a number one to find out what level Aki has reached in her new game.

MASTER CLEAN-UP

BY MARTA LEŚNIAK

As the sun rose over the Spinjitzu Monastery, Lloyd peeked into his students' bedroom. "WAKE UP!" he yelled. "Meeting in the living room in five minutes."

Arin yawned and Sora covered her head with a pillow.

Reluctantly, the students got out of their beds. They were tired from staying up late to build a mech for tonight's race at the Crossroads.

"If we finish the training quickly, we'll have time to take a nap before the race," Sora said.

Lloyd was already waiting there with a stack of cleaning equipment.

"Today you'll be doing an ancient ninja, three-task training course known as the Master Clean-up," he explained.

"An ancient ninja training course? Sounds more like a sly plan made by someone who shies away from cleaning," sighed Sora.

The first task was to collect the laundry scattered around the monastery. It had to be done quickly and with as little effort as possible, because as Lloyd said, "A true ninja treats their spine with respect and bends down only when absolutely necessary."

"It'll take ages to pick it all up!" Sora complained as she saw piles of dirty socks on the floor.

"Not necessarily!" Arin said, looking at a skateboard lying in a corner. It took him only a few moments to jump on it and gather enough speed to collect all of the laundry in one epic slide.

Then Lloyd explained the second task. "You can tell a true ninja by the spotless clean floor in their house," he said. "Which is why you're now going to polish the floor so that it's smudge-free."

Lloyd's students sighed and got back to work.

They did not do well at first. When one cleaned their part of the floor, the other would accidentally step on it, leaving lots of footprints behind.

Suddenly, Sora had a brilliant idea. She climbed on a chair and shouted, "We need to jump to bring our cleaning to the next level."

A moment later, Sora and Arin were jumping from one piece of furniture to another, mopping the floor in between jumps. Soon, the floor was shining!

"Your last assignment is the bathroom," Lloyd announced. "Remember, no one can clean a bathroom better than a true ninja."

Arin and Sora spent the whole afternoon cleaning the bathroom. "This was the worst workout ever!" Sora said when they finally closed the door of the spotless bathroom behind them. "I'm exhausted and we don't even have time for a nap. How will we be able to race today?"

"We can do it!" Arin told her. "Even after hours of struggling with a clogged toilet pipe, a true ninja will still have the strength to make their dream come true."

Before long, Arin and Sora were in their mech at the starting line of the race. Lloyd was cheering from the stands.

"Ready, set, go!" shouted the referee and the mechs darted away. Only a few seconds into the race Arin and Sora realized their mech's turbo booster switch was stuck and they couldn't go full speed. Soon, they were far behind the other mechs. Too far behind to see that one of the racers, Kreel, used tricks to eliminate one rival after another. When Arin and Sora reached the final straight, an obstacle course of mechs that Kreel knocked down was in their way.

Taken by surprise, the friends had to think fast. That was when they heard someone shout: "Master Clean-up!"

"It's Lloyd! He wants us to repeat today's training moves!" Arin said.

Moments later, their mech was moving from the top of one wreck to another, just like the friends had done when they mopped the floor. And when a huge, bent mech blocked their way, they did an epic slide under it, just like Arin picking up laundry from his skateboard.

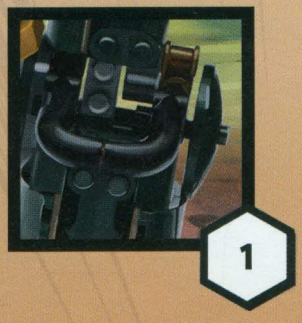

As Sora and Arin raced to catch up, Kreel turned to knock them down, lost her balance and stumbled to the ground. By the time Kreel got up, Arin and Sora were crossing the finish line.

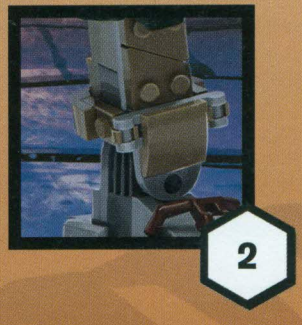

"Sorry we didn't appreciate today's training!" Arin called to Lloyd.

The Green Ninja accepted the apology with a sly smile, and said "So, now it's time to repeat the third task. Looks like your mech needs to be cleaned up much more than my bathroom did."

Help complete Lloyd's mech by writing the numbers of the picture pieces in the correct squares.

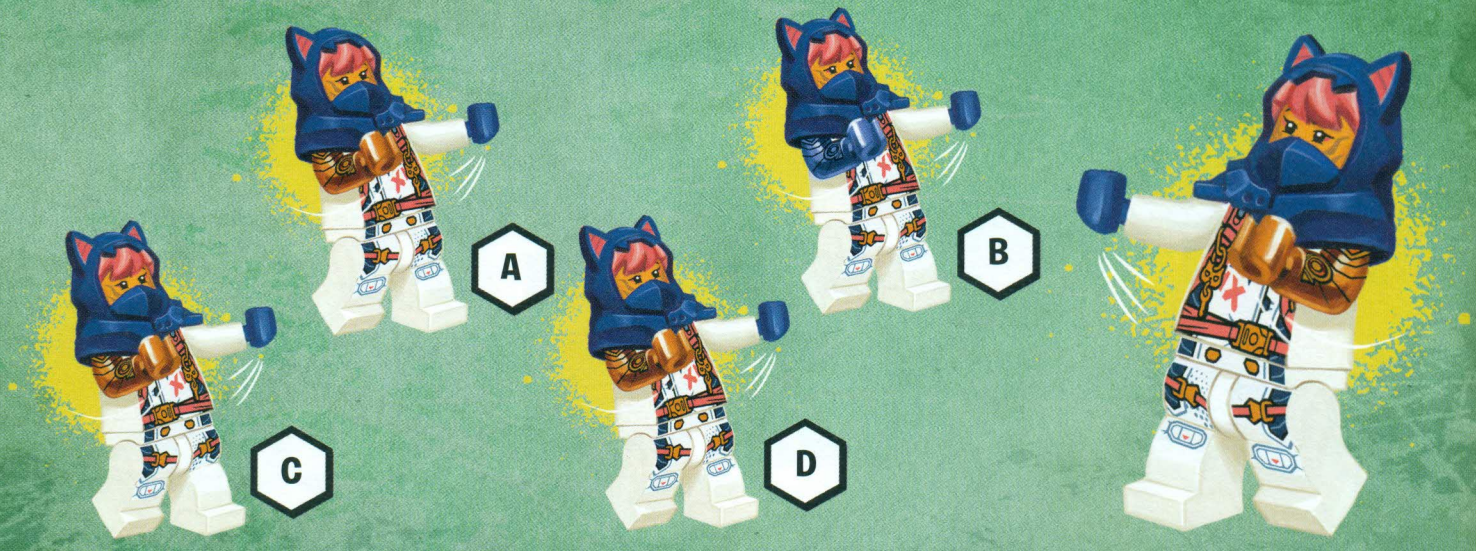

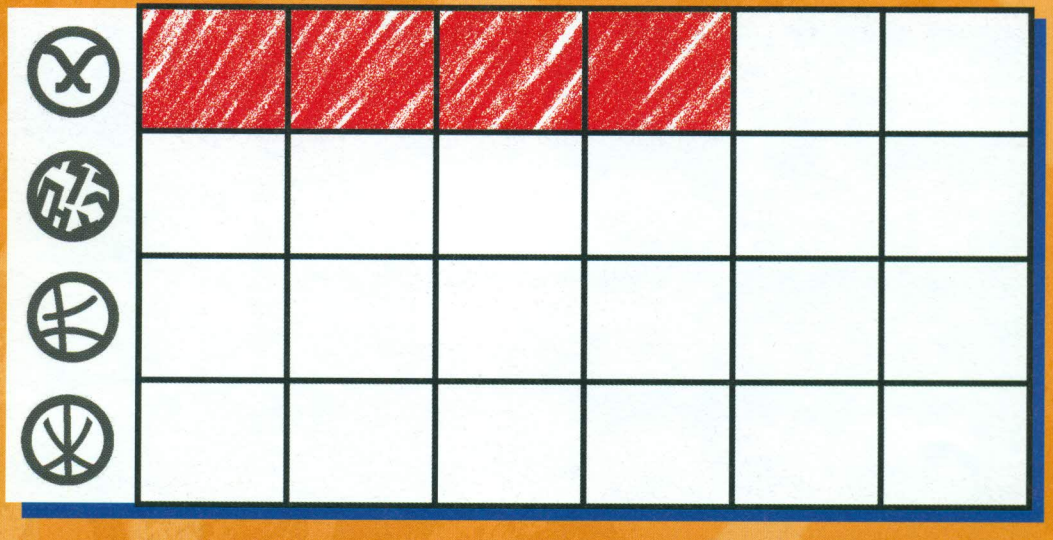

Sora uses every free moment to practise new battle tricks! Find her mirror image.

Count how many there are of each symbol, and colour that number of squares next to it in the grid. The symbol with the most coloured squares is Lloyd's.

Arin loves baking! Separate her pies into four groups, so that each group contains each colour of pie. One has been done for you.

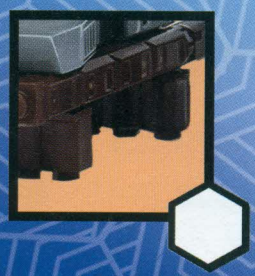

A good ninja is a ninja with a full stomach!

Only three of the picture pieces are taken from Sora's Transforming Mech Bike Racer. Find them and put a tick next to each one.

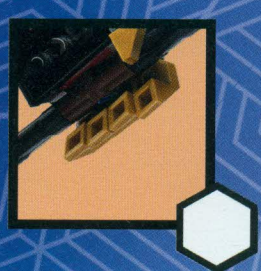

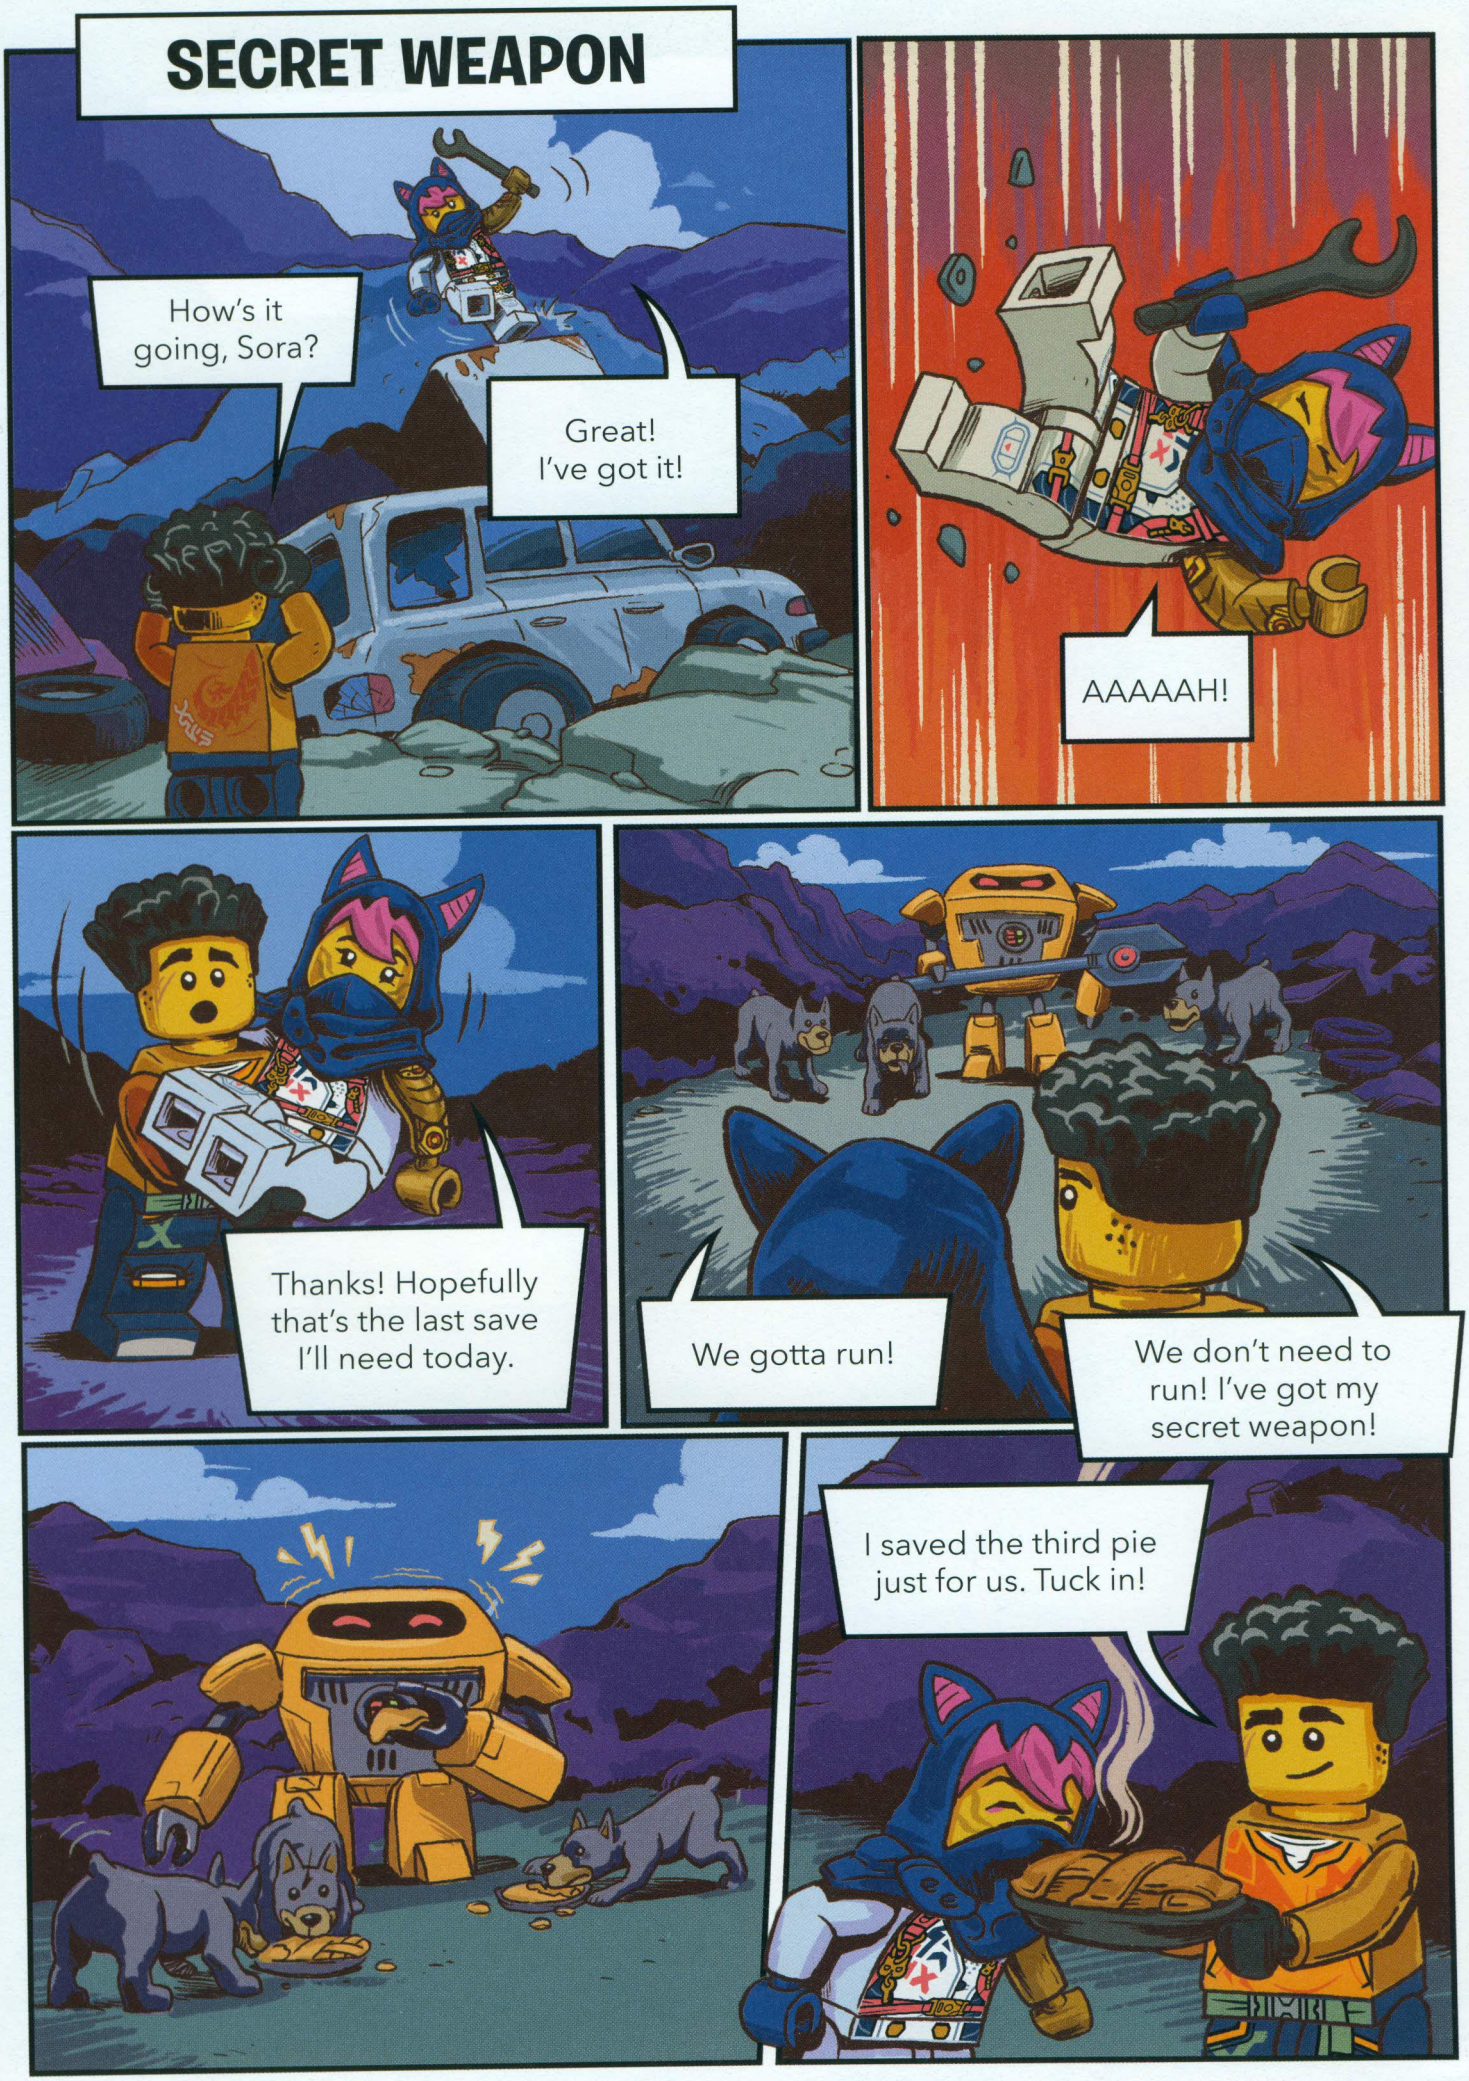

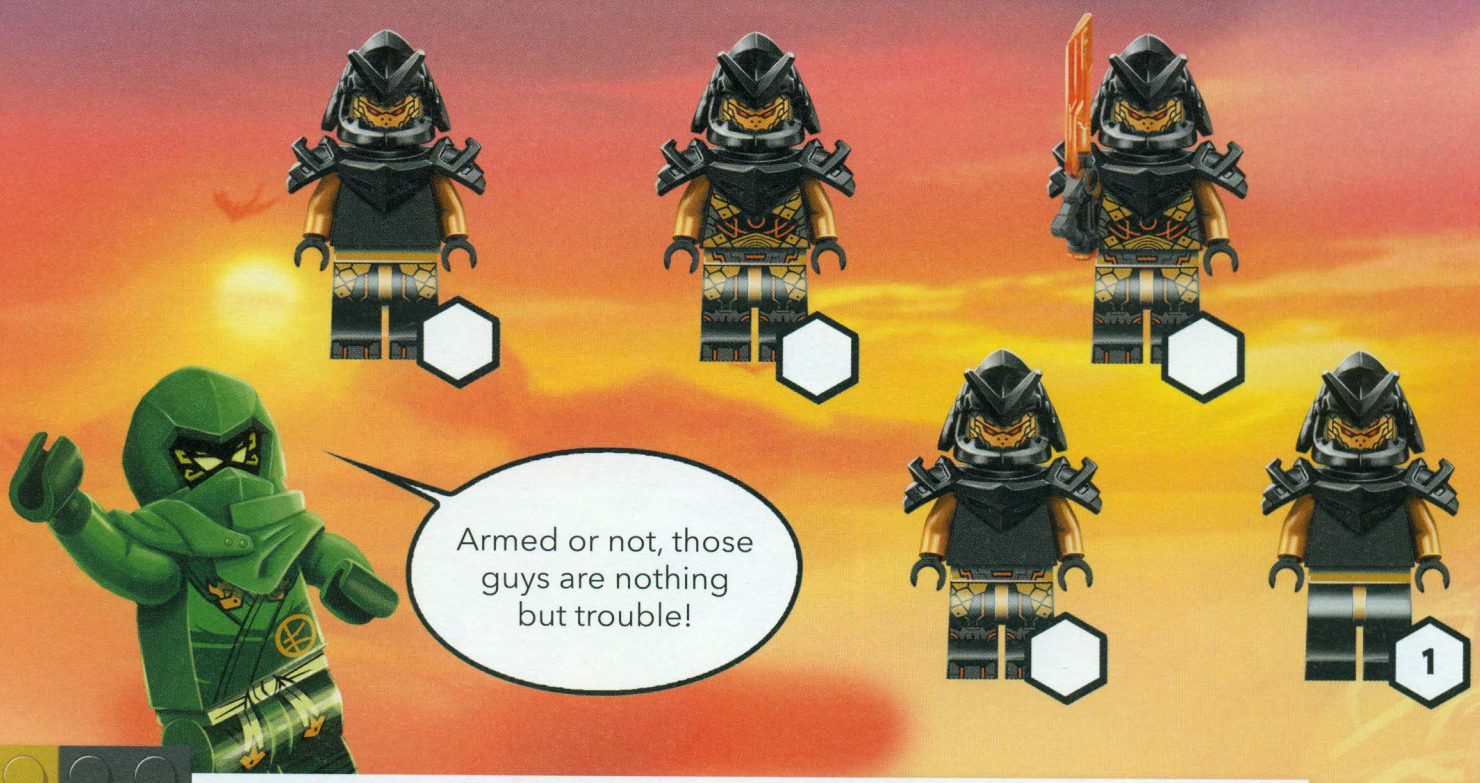

I feel like Sora and her mech are about to do a nice demolition!

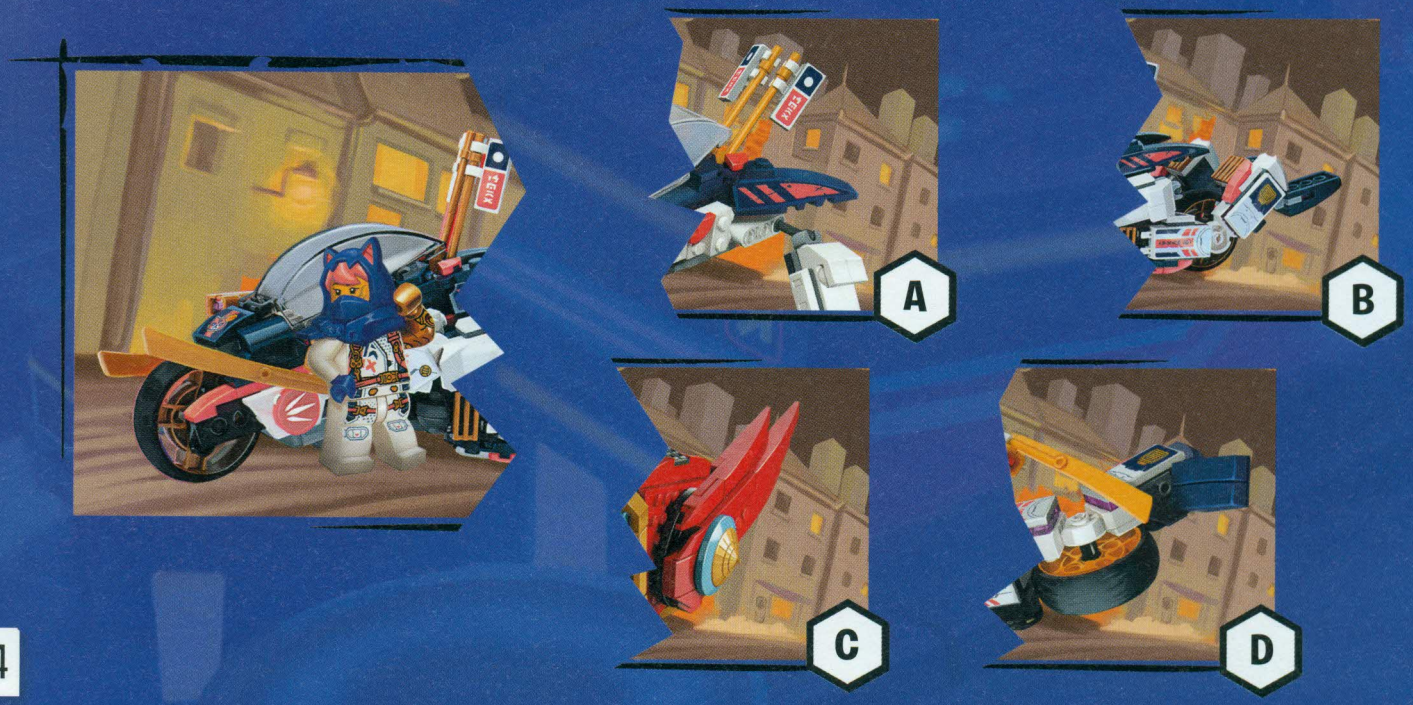

SECRET WEAPON
How's it going, Sora?
Great! I've got it!
AAAAAH!
Thanks! Hopefully that's the last save I'll need today.
We gotta run!
We don't need to run! I've got my secret weapon!
I saved the third pie just for us. Tuck in!

Number the pictures of the Dragon Hunter from the least to the most armed. The first one has been done for you.

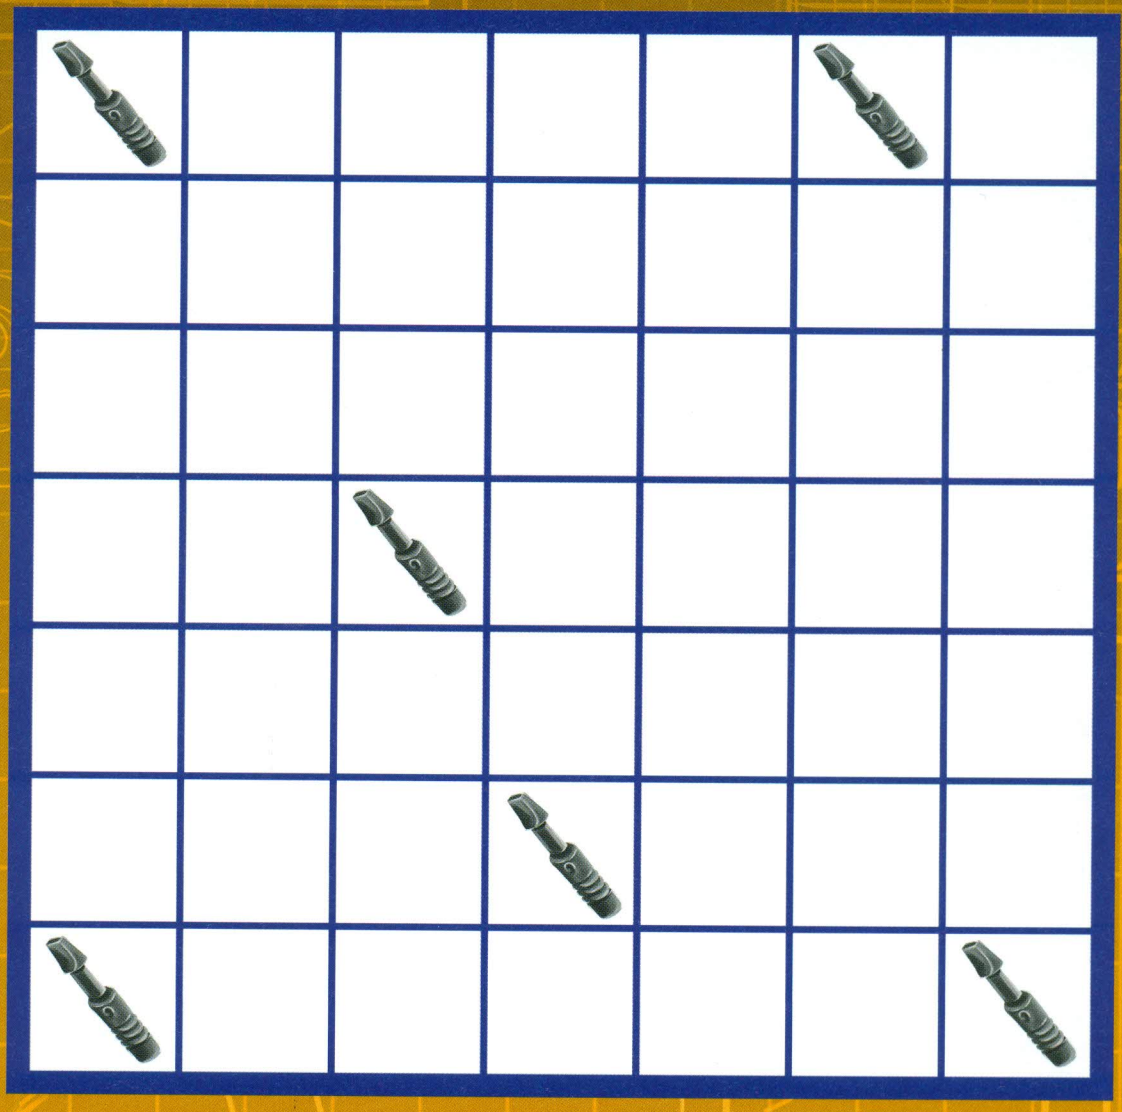

What has Sora built? Find the correct torn picture piece to find out.

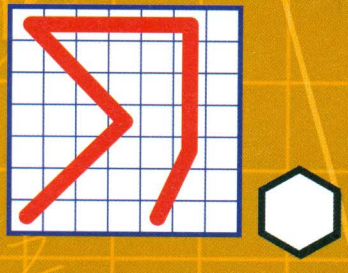

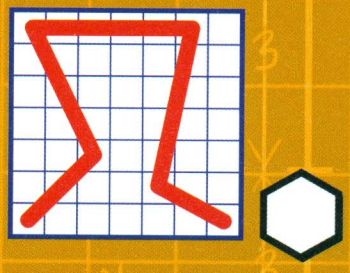

Draw straight lines to connect matching pairs of symbols. The ninja not crossed by any line is the one Lloyd met after the Merge.

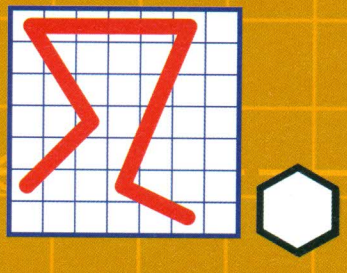

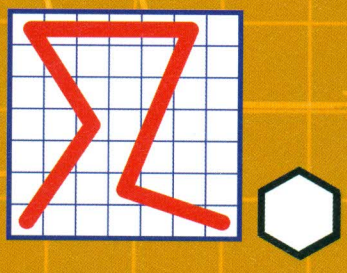

Only one of the patterns below matches the pattern on the grid. Put a tick next to it to activate loads of new features on Sora's mech.

You have reached the end of your adventure in the Ninjago world. Take this test to find out if you are a ninja expert just like Lloyd.
